News from the Practising Professors

We've had a really productive week in practising professors this week.. We have really enjoyed PE this week doing some gymnastics on Monday and on Wednesday we learnt some of the rules around hockey and learnt some skills for invasion games.

The children have really got to grips with the written method for multiplication in maths and I was so impressed with how the children helped each other to grasp these methods. They have showed perseverance and have encourage each other brilliantly.

In literacy we have learnt about the active and passive voice as well as using connectives effectively in our non-fiction writing. The children even sang a grammar song!

We were excited to receive some correspondence from our link school in Bradford and look at all the information they told us about themselves. I know some of the children were excited to find that they shared some interests and were really intrigued by some of the children's names. They are really looking forward to meeting them later in the year.

News from Working Wolves

We have had a lovely week in Working Wolves. We have been writing our final pieces for this half-term in English which have been based around the story of 'The Rabbits'. The children have all worked so hard to include the skills that we have been learning and to use all the techniques and punctuation elements.

We have begun a new unit in Maths which is still centred upon multiplication and division but is even more challenging and gives us new ways to solve problems.

In Science this week we have been creating our own classification keys to identify Australian minibeasts. This was very tricky but the children produced some excellent keys and used them to sort the animals.

Congratulations to Reuben, Georgia and Artem who received their Pen Licenses today!!!

News from Talented Trolls

This week we have been looking after our eggs.

Some of us have done an excellent job and would be a fantastic penguin!

Some of us including Mrs Malley are not so fantastic penguins!

We are working really hard on our cursive handwriting. It is really tricky but we are persevering.
